Another New Beginning
ANIMATION 7.50 Minutes, 2010

The artist believes that no stone has been left unturned by the human race ever since we started creating. We have successfully managed to use our cultural as well as technical knowledge along with positive energies, to construct the unthinkable. Through this video she further goes on to explore the possibilities to which human mind can extend their creative energies in order to build not only the living structures on the face of it, but beliefs and inspirations as well. She finds a way to express that though we seem to have reached our zenith in many ways, human mind is such that we can express our ingenuity, when the time asks for it.
